G3 growth in Q1 steady; slight deceleration due to weakening US

- GDP growth in Q1 2015 for the G3 – the US, Euro Area and China – will be 3.34% with respect to Q1 2014. Growth in Q2 will be slightly slower, at 3.19%, on the same basis.
- These figures are slightly lower than estimated last month, due to the downward revision of our estimate of current US growth.

Notes

Growth rates All quarterly growth rates mentioned in this release are calculated on a year-on-year basis: comparing the reference quarter with the same quarter in the previous year

Weights The US, Euro Area and China are weighted by their share of G3 total GDP in 2014, according to the IMF World Economic Outlook April 2015 database, using current international dollars, at purchasing power parity

Sources The US Bureau of Economic Analysis; Eurostat; National Bureau of Statistics of China; IMF World Economic Outlook database; Now-Casting Economics Limited

Now-Casting model All forecasts in this release are from the Now-Casting statistical model, which is designed to capture commonalities among macroeconomic data while filtering out idiosyncratic noise. The model produces estimates of the real economic conditions in different countries in real time, taking into account non-synchronous data sampled at mixed frequency. Forecasts are produced automatically, without judgment or other intervention. The deep parameters of Now-Casting model are re-estimated at the beginning of every year
